

Introduction: A Lesson from Asian Foodways (Sidney C.H. CHEUNG)

Section I: How Foodways is considered Intangible Heritage?

1. From Foodways to Intangible Heritage: A Case Study of Chinese Culinary Resource, Retail and Recipe in Hong Kong (Sidney C.H. CHEUNG) Published in International Journal of Heritage Studies (2013)
2. The Family Meal: A Study in Inter-Generational Communication and Intangible Cultural Heritage (Casey Man Kong LUM)
3. Rice as Intangible Cultural Heritage in Taiwan (LIN Yi-chieh)
4. When does Foreign Cuisine Become Local Heritage? The Case of Old-style Western Cuisine in Shanghai (James FARRER)

Section II: East Asian Foodways in Transition

5. Whale Meat Foodways in the Contemporary Japan: From Fish Sausages in the 1960s to Whale Tongue Dishes in the 1990s (Jun AKAMINE)
6. Regional Variations and Local Interpretations of the National Food: The Case of Japanese Noodles (Satoshi SERIZAWA)
7. Memory, Specialty Food, and Identity: A Case of Mullet Roe in Taiwan (May Y. H. CHANG and Cordia CHU)
8. Minority Memories and Creations: The Gendered Heritage of Hoklo Salty Tea in Hong Kong (Siumi Maria TAM, Janice LAU AND MAN Ke)

Section III: Southeast and East Asian Food Heritage Re-constructed

9. Hindu Uphragriha: Preserver of Culinary Tradition (Mohsina MUKADAM)
10. Xitkoddí (rice and fish curry), Comunidades and Ramponkars: Goan Foodways in Transition (Kyoko MATSUKAWA)
11. Contested Culinary Heritage in a Vietnamese Town: Cooks, Diners and Local Identity (Nir AVIELI)
12. Nasi Goreng on the Beach (Michael J. HITCHCOCK)
13. Nostalgic Imagination: A Study of the Sweet Potato in Taiwan (May Y. H. CHANG)