Müller Chamber Choir

Müller Chamber Choir, founded in 1999, is a 30-strong male choir that aims to introduce the finest blend of male choral sound to the choral scene; since 2013, the choir is led by Meng-Hsien PENG as conductor and artistic director and has achieved prestige as one of Taiwan's foremost choral groups.

The youthful male choir participated in the 9th International Johannes Brahms Choir Festival and Competition in July 2015. It was named category winner in Folk, Sacred and Male Choir categories and took home the Grand Prix. The choir went on to participate in the 9th World Choir Games 2016: Champions Competition, receiving Gold medals in Male Chamber Choirs, Musica Sacra a cappella and Musica Contemporanea categories. Notably, the Taiwanese choir was declared Champion of the Male Chamber Choirs category with a record high score. INTERKULTUR world rankings released in February 2017 ranks Müller Chamber Choir #3 among top 1000 choirs and #1 in the Chamber Choirs & Vocal Ensembles category.

This coming July, Müller Chamber Choir has the honor to perform in Singapore International Choral Festival, SICF 2017 as feature choir. At the invitation of Malaysia Sin Chew Daily, the choir will also visit and give a concert in Kuala Lumpur. It is further engaged to perform in Fuzhou, China for the 1st Cross-strait Choral Seminar.

It is part of the choir's mission to create a distinctive Taiwanese male voice repertoire, which it does so by commissioning native composers and writers to collaborate on choral projects with the potential to bring out the multi-faceted depth and richness of the men's choral soundscape.

The word müller, a homophonic pun meaning wooden building in Mandarin Chinese, refers to the music classroom where the choir's founding members first experienced the pure joy of choral music. The name testifies to the choir's humble beginnings, youthful passion, and unwavering belief in the power of music to bring peace to those around us.

Guided through the path by Ms. Susanna Saw, the Men In Action strive to learn to work with one another as a team and to expand their knowledge on Music. Since the inception of the ensemble, they have performed in several concerts and events.

Gaudéamus Youth Choir

Gaudéamus Youth Choir is the Young Choral Academy's resident youth chamber choir. Comprising 35 singers between the ages of 14 to 21, it is currently directed by three award-winning conductors – Lai Suk Yin, Terence Au and Mak Chi Hoe. Gaudéamus began life as three separate vocal ensembles namely Naturally Vocal, Vox Vivacis and New Edge Youth Chamber choirs, which mostly comprised of members of the Academy's external choirs, as well as graduates of the Kuala Lumpur Children's Choir (KLCC).

The main objective of the youth choir programme at Young Choral Academy is to provide a platform for young singers to learn, share and perform good choral music across the different genres to a high artistic level. The repertoire covered is wide-ranging, from folksongs and madrigals to Classical and Contemporary, and in different languages. Gaudéamus made its debut at the 2016 Malaysian Youth Choral Festival at Wisma MCA Hall to great success; their most recent performance was at OperaKUL 2017 where they staged a night concert as part of the 2-day programme.

Gaudéamus members come from different vocal and choral backgrounds, ranging from high school to collegiate choirs. Some of its past and current members are alumni of some of the top school choirs in the country, as well as the prestigious World Youth Choir and Asia-Pacific Youth Chamber Choir (APYC).
